DETAILED ACTIONDouble Patenting

The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. A nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting rejection is appropriate where the conflicting claims are not identical, but at least one examined application claim is not patentably distinct from the reference claim(s) because the examined application claim is either anticipated by, or would have been obvious over, the reference claim(s). See, e.g., In re Berg, 140 F.3d 1428, 46 USPQ2d 1226 (Fed. Cir. 1998); In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) or 1.321(d) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent either is shown to be commonly owned with this application, or claims an invention made as a result of activities undertaken within the scope of a joint research agreement.

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

Claims 1 – 6 are rejected on the ground of nonstatutory double patenting over claims 1 and 2 of U. S. Patent No. 6,755,000 since the claims, if allowed, would improperly extend the "right to exclude" already granted in the patent.

The subject matter claimed in the instant application is fully disclosed in the patent and is covered by the patent since the patent and the application are claiming common subject matter, as follows: a molding tile apparatus for mounting onto abutting wall surfaces having a first and a second wall abutment vicinity (forming a seem, an inside and an outside corner) comprising a first and a second corner turning portion, a separate leg portion integral with each of the first and second corners; and having a recess and an insert.

Furthermore, there is no apparent reason why applicant was prevented from presenting claims corresponding to those of the instant application during prosecution of the application which matured into a patent. See In re Schneller, 397 F.2d 350, 158 USPQ 210 (CCPA 1968). See also MPEP § 804.

In regard to claim 1, the U.S. Patent No. 6,755,000 claims a molding tile apparatus comprising a first horizontal, lateral extent corner turning portion having a leg portion integral with the first corner turning portion, both having an interface between them defined by a thickness differential (claim 1).

In regard to claim 2, the U.S. Patent No. '000 claims a molding tile apparatus wherein the corner-turning portion provides a frontal recess, and further comprising a separable frontal decorative insert adapted (claim 1).

In regard to claim 3, the U.S. Patent No. '000 claims a molding tile apparatus comprising a second corner turning portion integral with the leg portion and spaced apart from the first corner turning portion in opposing juxtaposition, the second corner turning portion having a horizontal, lateral extent; an interface between the leg portion and the second turning portion defined by a thickness differential (claim 1).

In regard to claim 4 the U.S. Patent No. '000 claims a molding tile apparatus wherein the second corner-turning portion provides a frontal recess, and further comprising a separable frontal decorative insert (claim 2).

In regard to claim 5, the U.S. Patent No. '000 claims a molding tile apparatus comprising a wall abutment vicinity forming an inside and an outside corner, wherein combination the apparatus comprising a corner turning portion having a horizontal, lateral extent; and at least one separate, horizontally oriented, linearly extensive, leg portion abutting the corner turning portion; the interface between each of the leg portions and the corner turning portion is defined by a thickness differential (claims 2).

Claim Objections

Claim 5 is objected to because of the following informalities: "portions" in line appears to be a typographical error. Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1 – 6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by the U.S. Patent 6,309,036 to Ancel.

In regard to claim 1, Ancel discloses a molding tile apparatus 10 comprising a first horizontal, lateral extent corner turning portion 24 having a leg portion 12 integral with the first corner turning portion, both having an interface between them defined by a thickness differential (see Marked Fig.).

In regard to claim 2, Ancel discloses a molding tile apparatus wherein the corner-turning portion provides a frontal recess 26, and further comprising a separable frontal decorative insert (see Marked Fig.) adapted.

In regard to claim 3, Ancel discloses a molding tile apparatus comprising a second corner turning portion 75 integral (Abstract) with the leg portion and spaced apart from the first corner turning portion in opposing juxtaposition (Fig. 3), the second corner turning portion having a horizontal, lateral extent; an interface between the leg portion and the second turning portion defined by a thickness differential (see Marked Fig.).

In regard to claim 4, Ancel discloses a molding tile apparatus wherein the second corner-turning portion provides a frontal recess (see Marked Fig.), and further comprising a separable frontal decorative insert (see Marked Fig.).

In regard to claim 5, Ancel discloses a molding tile apparatus 10 comprising a wall abutment vicinity forming an inside and an outside corner (see Marked Fig.), wherein combination of the apparatus is comprising a corner turning portion 75 having a horizontal, lateral extent; and at least one separate, horizontally oriented, linearly extensive, leg portion 12 abutting the corner turning portion; the interface 75 between each of the leg portions and the corner turning portion is defined by a thickness differential (see Marked Fig.).

In regard to claim 6, Ancel discloses a molding tile apparatus wherein the corner turning portion comprising a separable frontal decorative insert (see Marked Fig.).
